The Right to Advocate Resolution (Copy attached):

In accordance with rights granted in the Constitution, students in consultation with their families, have the right to opt out of statewide standardized testing such as the MCAS or PARCC.

In maintaining a district held belief to a family’s right to advocate for their children and a student’s right to advocate for him or herself, families and students will not be subject to any form of negative consequences from the school district for choosing to opt out of such tests.

Furthermore, opting out will not have implications of grades or class placement of any individual student. High school students should be made aware that a passing score on the 10th grade level MCAS is a graduation requirement set forth by the State of Massachusetts.

Educators who choose to discuss opting out of such tests in a family or student initiated conversation shall not be subject to any form of retribution by anyone in the SBRSD.

It is acknowledged that the SBRSD administrators have a duty and right to inform district families of the possible state imposed consequences that may, but are not guaranteed, to occur in the event of low participation on the statewide standardized tests.

We are pleased to reaffirm that free speech and advocating for one’s child is a fundamental right of the SBRSD educational community.

Further discussion ensued.

Ms. Sparhawk motioned, seconded by Ms. Rundle, to amend the resolution as follows:

The Southern Berkshire Regional School District (SBRSD) School Committee resolves that neither parents who choose to opt their children out of the PARCC, MCAS, MCAS2.0, or any other high stakes standardized test nor students will be subject to any negative consequences from the SBRSD administration or the SBRSD School Committee.
